SPEAKER:

Aleksey Shishaev

*Head of the Economic Section,
Embassy of the Russian Federation to the United States*

The United States and Russia have reached agreement in principle on a bilateral market access deal in the context of Russia's efforts to join the World Trade Organization (WTO). This agreement creates new market access opportunities for U.S. providers of goods and services to the Russian market. It is a strong commercial agreement that should strengthen economic relations between our countries.

Russia is a $1 billion export market for U.S. agricultural products, and our largest export market for poultry.

Russia is currently a $2 to $3 billion market annually for U.S. industrial and consumer goods and is one of our fastest growing markets.

Advance registration is required.

Please register no later than Friday, November 30. Cancellations accepted thru noon on Tuesday, December 4. No-shows will be billed.
